Introduction

Attending Lady Manners School means more than achieving in the classroom. You are all encouraged to enhance your personal development through following existing interests and discovering new ones, by taking part in our huge range of extra-curricular activities.

This booklet tells you about the clubs that are available and details of when and where they run.

This year, all clubs in school will take place in year group bubbles, and some will be on a rota basis in order to enable everyone to take part. If a club is due to take place when you would normally be having lunch, you should bring a packed lunch on that day, which you will be able to eat in one of the classrooms in your zone.

House Activities

House activities run throughout the year and there is something to interest everyone. You may well have the opportunity to represent your house in competitions and activities such as badminton, the house quiz, hockey, chess, cricket, languages spelling bee, football, the literacy quiz, rugby, robotics, dance and enterprise, to name just a few. Of course there is the grand finale of the year - Sports Day - in which everyone can participate, whether it is as an athlete or a supporter.

They work hard to make a difference at Lady Manners School. This year they are using technology to continue to work together virtually.
Equestrian Team	All	Weekends		Do you have a horse that is capable of jumping a minimum 40 cm track for 'Grass Roots' show jumping qualification or a minimum of 70 cm for NSEA National Championship qualification? There are a range of different competition heights available to suit most riders for both show jumping and arena eventing. You can also compete in inter-school dressage qualifiers at prelim, novice or elementary level. In all disciplines riders compete as individuals and may also compete and qualify in a team of three or four. We have also been able to hold a number of free training sessions for riders as a result of very generous sponsors. If you have transport and are interested in representing the school in the NSEA competitions then please contact Mrs Green in the downstairs Science Office for further information or look at the notice board on the Sports Link corridor. There is a small fee for membership of the NSEA. Further information about the NSEA is available at www.nsea.org.uk

Activity	Year	When	Where	Description
Genomics	12	Thursday lunchtime	BS1&2	As an IRIS (Institute for Research in Schools) school, students at Lady Manners have an opportunity to get involved in annotating the genome of the whipworm which is responsible for a major Neglected Tropical Disease (NTD) worldwide. This worm is responsible for impacting on the long-term health of both children and adults and has a devastating effect on their ability to attend school or work thereby perpetuating the poverty cycle for these people. Students extend their knowledge beyond the A-level Biology curriculum to annotate the genome of the whipworm using a specially designed computer programme. There are now apprenticeship degrees available to study at third level in this area as the number of experts in this field is not sufficient to meet the needs of this emerging field in biology and medicine. As the project is being conducted by a group of international scientists collaborating with students from a number of schools across the UK, there are opportunities for students to attend meetings or symposia where active research is presented which could further extend their experiences and interests.
German Booster	11	Thursday lunchtime	Sc4	This club would cater for any particular needs of GCSE German students, e.g. support with certain aspects of grammar, boosting listening skills, coping with unknown vocabulary. The half hour will provide additional support with the preparations for the exam but also give students some cultural input into life in German-speaking countries, music, films, adverts and much more.
